New Freshmen – The Admission Funnel

New freshmen are the primary source of new students at USI. Since 2010, there has been a decline in the number of applicants. In addition, with the changed admission standards to minimize the number of conditionally admitted students, USI's acceptance rate in fall 2013 of new freshmen was 69% compared to 88% in fall 2009.

New Freshmen – Demographics

USI continues to have a relatively high percentage of new freshmen who are first generation college students.

In addition, the percentage of new freshmen with at least one relative who has attended USI is growing fast with 31% of all new freshmen reporting legacy status in 2013.

New Freshmen - Major at Entry

The popularity of majors within the College of Nursing and Health Professions has risen since 2009, from 21% of all new freshmen declaring a major in the college to 24% in 2013. The increase in majors within the Pott College of Science, Engineering and Education is due in part to the move of Teacher Education and Kinesiology and Sport majors to that college in 2011.
